I'm not too familiar with the Ft Lauderdale area but fished a good bit north of palm beach... April will be a transitional month with the winter rolling out and summer fish rolling in. The snook will start roaming out of the back bays but less likely to see them on the beach since its still pretty cold, same for tarpon. I think you'll still be on the winter side of things so that means pomps, jacks, ladies etc....in may it would be the other way around
