Generally what I was told is that it is a side ways swip down stream. The idea is it places the hook in the side if the fishes mouth. That being said I find it really hard to do this when I get a hit. Prersonally I just lift and drive the hook home. Depending on what strength leader you have and how soft your rod tip is. I'm not bailing fish like the pro bass just a nice strong hook set.

It's not really something that you can focus on. not in my case at least. Just set the hook. You miss some and get most of them.
