Hatches should be on schedule this year. Air temps have been slightly below normal so far this year. The long range forecast calls for the same. So, I don't think you will see march browns this year. We should have the big 3(quill gordons, blue quills, hendricksons) come the end of April. If we don't get some decent rain in the next couple of weeks streams will be on the low side. Not much of a snow pack to melt. 😞
