I am assuming you are swinging 2 wet. I do the same as pcray1231. It lets the dropper fly swing better and tying to the hook has to limit the hooking from the dropper. We can argue how much but at least a little. I moved to Boilingsprings 35 yrs, ago and was taught by a few guys that had done it for a long time. If the tie to the hook was best I would assume they would have done it. Droppers of a dry is different. Then I tie to the rear of the hook. Both will work.
