For me if the tip dives forward....I'm going to have a tired arm quick because the weight is outward and pulling my arm that way. I normally test it with full line on, and the tip should slowly flow upward. If say 30 feet of line is off the reel and out the tip it can hold the tip from moving either direction. If you have the line (leader and tippit) throughout the guides it shouldn't make a difference either way.
