I unfortunately have had two flyrods meet window closures in my car. Orvis replaced both of them without batting an eye. They truly stand behind their product.

I wonder if the returned products customer's had put the rod next to or over the fireplace? Heat of that kind will destroy the properties of a flyrod and break down their quality. Also I would think near gas or any kind of solvent may lesson the qualities as well. Just my 25 cents. (I'm inflated)
