I kinda think the landing net is more of a hassle....your fly line can get all tangled up in it and cause more problems than it's worth. Maybe I should learn to carry mine on my back vs my side. nets also loves tree branches etc. when it's on your side.

I've learned to wet my hands before handling the fish and then remove the hook. Photos are not of my concern, although a lot of family members will tell me that if I don't have photos I didn't catch it.
