

Subject: : Conservation

Topic: : Hydro Fracking Trouble in Wyoming County

Re: Hydro Fracking Trouble in Wyoming County

Author: : Lonewolf

Date: : 2013/3/15 21:16:54

URL:

TomG,

thank you my thoughts exactly, I wonder if engineers thought the same thing when pcb's got into spring creek many years ago? Any spill or trouble could be avoided if there was no Fracking. This was a major rush without enough oversight by DEP inspectors statewide. how many oppsies is it gonna take till folks realize this is no freakin good! Ahhh some will say its not happening near me that's all north or west of me, but underground aquifers don't work that way. Poop goes down hill so does pollution. If it happened near a stream or area you hunted would you care then. Should have been a serious outrage by all Pennsylvanian Outdoorsman and women when this was even introduced as a moment of brilliance.

Humans need water to survive, when the water is polluted you are out of luck.