Would I be out of place coming to this, I have the gear and a little experience but haven't had the nerve to put myself in a creek amongst experienced anglers.

Thanks for any advice

J,

Welcome to our online community.

We talk fly fishing and related stuff here every day and frequently have get togethers - we call 'em jamborees or "mini jams" etc) - to fish or tie flies. There are many beginners in our community and they attend and enjoy the jams too. You're certainly welcome to link up with us in Boiling Springs and tag along and fish as little or as much as you want. Many of the fellows are hard core anglers, but we don't mind newbies. Just watching experienced fishermen do their thing is a great way to learn. Evening will probably see the most fishing focus as this is when the hatches, if any, will probably occur.

In the meantime, continue to watch this thread for further info and if you have questions about the event, ask them here. We have a Beginner's Forum with a lot of enthusiastic newbies and that's where to ask any basic questions you may have about the sport. Take some time to check out that forum.
