I think balance is important, but I may be in the minority. But what I know is you can have too much back on the reel even though the rod and reel are balanced. One reason I recommend anyone buying a rod and reel cast them first, don't buy anything without trying it out. Now that being said, the same reel will not necessarily balance on 2 different 6 wt rods.

After a full day of fishing and catching I sometimes have a tired arm, but I'm never in pain from casting and retrieving..
