

---

Subject: : Fly Fishing Locations

Topic: : Carlisle this weekend

Re: Carlisle this weekend

Author: : addictedangler

Date: : 2013/3/19 7:37:57

URL:

I live on a tributary to the breeches and monitor it daily. We can expect Grannoms and Hendricksons anytime now. Last year the majority of these hatches were over by the second day of the open season. However it has not been as mild and will probably be around the end of the month this year. I have been seining and turning stones over to collect nymphs for shows and it is looking very promising. There are a lot of mature Hendrickson nymphs. Not all sections of the creek get good hatches but they come off as low as McCormick road area and as far up as a few miles below Hunsdale hatchery. The hatch of Hendricksons dissapeared for almost 30 years but the last 4 or 5 years it has been as good as anyone would want. Those who travel and expect to hit it should fish all day because depending on air temps. it can come of from 10:00 AM or as late as 4:00 PM.