

Subject: : Gear Talk

Topic: : Fly Line Maintenance - Seperating Truth from Fiction

Re: Fly Line Maintenance - Seperating Truth from Fiction

Author: : Tony300wby

Date: : 2013/3/19 22:20:30

URL:

Quote:

TimMurphy wrote:

Dear Kev,

I don't buy superlines, I mostly just buy cheap Cortland knockoffs at Hook and Hackle.

I could refloat the Ttitanic with all the cleaning pads I have but like I said, I don't buy overpriced BS waste of money flylines.

All good floating flylines began and ended with Cortland lines. I realize in today's world Cortland blows but I'm loyal and stupid so I stick with them, or at least the people that provide the knockoffs of their lines.

They work

On a side note the first time I buy a flyline that doesn't include a cleaning pad will be the last time I buy that brand of flyline.

Regards,

Tim Murphy 😊

I have the same views about alot of the fly lines on the market today. Most people couldnt tell the difference between a $100 line and a $25 line unless they seen the package it came in.

As far as cleaning goes. I run mine through a soft cloth with soapy water when they start getting dirty. Then treat it with whatever line dressing I have handy.

Good luck, Tony