

Subject: : Gear Talk

Topic: : Wading socks

Re: Wading socks

Author: : N8ureboy

Date: : 2013/3/20 16:37:17

URL:

Quote:

jrmyln wrote:

For wet wading, I have always used the Simms neoprene wading socks (with built in gravel guards) that fold over and have the clip to attach to the laces. I have used socks, including wool/poly wet wading socks, but the neos are a lot better. I have type 2 diabetes and although I currently don't have any issues with my feet, with the neos, I am able to fish all day without any issues.

I think they're only $30 and if not, there are other makers.

that describes them well. Do I stil need to wear light socks underneath them? Will the neoprene rub the flesh off my feet?

Also best way to clean them?