I would try to get some of the basics down first without going to a class. youtube has a million videos on this. Get a little grasp on it first. You will get more benifit from a class if you do.

I would suggest also not buying a fly tying kit. put post up like "what do i need to tie the following flies?" or something. IMO the kits don't have all that great of material either. I can ship you one of my older vices, and some other tools i donty use and some started material if you would like.

These would not be great by any means but could get you started. Pm me if you are interested.
