I've read almost all of his books and "environmental issues" are not something that i remember much about. I don't find his stuff to be what t'd call instructional , his writing style reminds me of this website really , lighthearted stories about fly fishing for trout and all the things associated with the experience. His refusal to take any aspect of the experience too seriously is why i like him. It's like sit5tin around a campfire bsing about fishin.
