You were indeed one of the first users ever to buy the GPS Guide. I actually discovered PAFlyFish.com because of a post you made years ago that showed up when I searched Google. I am glad you still feel so strongly about its value.

The Android update is in the works as we speak but it may be a month or so before version 2.0 is ready. There is a huge amount of work involved.

I have just updated my website to reflect all of the features available on the latest iPhone version and will post a link on a separate thread. You may want to take a look as my plan is to have all the same features on the Android version.
