
Subject: : Gear Talk

Topic: : "Affordable" 50$ & under sunglasses

Re: "Affordable" 50$ & under sunglasses

Author: : jeremymcon

Date: : 2013/3/22 14:19:48

URL:

I have a pair of polarized sunglasses from "The Flying Fisherman" that are decent. I paid about $15 for them, so they're really nothing special. I don't like to pay much for sunglasses because I always end up sitting on them and ruining them!

Anyway, this company has plenty of different models on Amazon, so I'm sure you could find some to fit your face. Only problem is that there's no way to try them on before you buy them. You'd just have to read the reviews and see how people said they fit.

I really like that most of the styles from The Flying Fisherman come in gray or amber lenses, so you can get what you prefer. Some of them actually come in a lighter yellow that's good for low light.

The spring temples on the model I have would probably make them fit you comfortably. I have this model:
<http://amzn.to/WT445I>