blood knots are what I spend most of my time doing on the stream. or at least that's what it feels like. you get better at them and they are always gonna be a pain. that being said I can usually do one in about a minute. I like surgeons knots but not for fly fishing. reason being is they are not inline and they are smaller knots. I use a blood as a line to line to have a strong line connection and second when nymphing I like a bigger knot so my split shots stay in place. I still got good eyes and my hands are fine I think ill be ok for awhile. my dad struggles with it but that's why he goes whit me.

wbranch I think they use a few over hand knots. that what it seems like when I watched the guy stich up my gums after getting my wisdom teeth out.
