Jack,

We I may have shouted this over your head on a cott but I will say it again. Brown trout stick and rise in Muddy Creek. Brook trout run, leave, dissappear, no one knows where they go. Rainbows move miles and are great winter hitters there.

One year we stocked 5,000 and I caught a total of 4 that year. One where we did not stock them. One float barrel rolled over in a hole releasing all 150 trout Maybe a few remained. I called a guy that usually helps, a harvester that uses bait and he went the next day and couldn't find them....a total of 600 were released in that 1.5 mile stretch of the SB...and this is a guy you don't want to fish behind.

When I see his car at a parking spot, I move on. He stings a lot of trout. keeps a limit but catches dozens.

Anyway. Bows, meh, they move but you can find them....its the brookies tha tave me baffles in Muddy Creek.

Mikes findings are right in line with what we have been saying for years.....give us Brown trout.
