

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Larger Flies

Re: Larger Flies

Author: : David

Date: : 2013/3/24 18:33:37

URL:

Not often, but when conditions dictate... Also depends on what type of flies you are asking about. For dry flies, the typical "match the hatch" rules apply. If it is a really big bug (some drakes, among others, can be bigger than a 10) I will put on a fly that matches the size, shape, and color of the real bug.

Similar for nymphing... a common "big" one would be when giant stoneflies are active.

For prospecting (fishing when there isn't a hatch and I am just trying to locate where the fish are) I will sometimes put on a streamer that is much bigger than a 10.