Wow! Al Ritt's Fighting Crayfish is a seriously high maintenance tie. Really cool pattern, but I will probably lose that son of a gun on the first cast with some of the places that I fish. Thanks for the link, I really enjoyed watching him tie that fly. Doubt whether any of them will ever grace my WW fly box because although I do enjoy tying I really like to fish more than tie. Tight lines, spring is just around the corner (I think), after we get rid of the impending snow storm. Let us know how you do with them this season!
