I'll never forget the time about 20 yrs ago I was bass fishing in a pond ( almost a lake in size )in Del. in a canoe. Got up real early so I could slip on to the water before first light. So there I am fly rod in hand catching some on deer hair bugs sun's coming up, got all the usual dawning of the day stuff going on, you know complete serenity then there's this huge roar of engines and the next thing I know...bass boats and hoots and hollers fill the day. The glass smooth water illuminated by sunrise now a churning froth of waves. I left, at the dock I was told it was my fault for not checking the schedule. Ignorant me didn't know there was one. 😬
