

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Mentor day

Re: Mentor day

Author: : addictedangler

Date: : 2013/3/25 16:39:47

URL:

The problem is not number caught but the number killed. I did a study on bait released motrtality rate about 10 years ago and it can be devastating. The point is we are teaching our children to be good to the earth and to each other not how many fish we catch. This is one of the problems. This was a mentor day. After reading what a mentor was according to the guidelines of fish and boat it appears some folks did not read the directions or have common sense. I do not think it is OK to kill trout and throw them back. Call the YellowBreeches fly shop and ask about the complaints. If it was the youth catching 2 trout and taking them home it could have been a different story to tell in our are. I understand not all actions were wrong but there were way too many to just say well they are kids and that's is ok.