You know, if I'd been there first, at one time I would have continued to fish and would, no doubt, have been obnoxious about it. But, today, I would try to do what I did a couple weeks ago: I would have told the competitor and his babysitter that I would not have done that to them, and I would have tried to find another place to fish.

If they were already there, I would certainly have gone elsewhere without stopping to "case" the section because they were there first. If there were so many spots occupied in the competition's "beats," I'd have tried to change stream locations, streams, or may have even left for home.
