How does competition fishing not suck the joy out of what is, to many people who hang here, our most beloved pasttime? Feeding your family, that's a quest worthy of competition, but fooling a fish?

And they're most effective technique can be duplicated with a long rod and a spinfishing set-up, all mono, no flyline, I'm surprised they get to call it fly fishing. We're all grown men and don't take kindly to being told what to do, except by our wives, so we do what we want, within reason, but I'm sure I'll be sticking with my methods and not adopting the tournament style. Have at it Becker.
