It is about time- and convenience. Last weekend I found myself in an unfamiliar place- Lancaster County, with only a couple hours to fish. No maps with me, only a smartphone. I could have spent time trying to research locations on my tiny phone screen, or just click a few buttons and instantly get navigation to a FF only stream.

There are always multiple ways in accomplishing what you desire. For me, I would rather spend that extra time fishing and $30 is a reasonable price for it. It is the same argument for all technological devices/advancement- is the convenience worth the price? There will always be opinions on both sides of the fence.
