Mike, this probably a dumb question, but from a fisheries management and customer experience point of view, wouldn't it be better to 'sweep' the fish stocked at easily accessible bridge holes out into the main stream and have them spread out a little, giving anglers more elbow room and making them a little harder to hammer ?

by sweep i mean some kind of net or boom (or even a really big stick or paddle) to scare them downstream out of the hole ?

I do appreciate that you are trying to cater for all btw.

Mark.
