Yeah, that territory is far from easy access. However, downstream of connellsville, you have a park in connellsville with a boat ramp. you have cedar creek park which has a boat ramp. I believe there are some ballfields in between those two parks that looks like you could park within 100' of the river. Good luck if you are using a driftboat though. Lots of reall shallow spots under normal summer flows in some areas. In particular, a riffle below the connellsville park could be a 1/4 mile portage sub 900 cfs. Regardless, drifting is much easier on the upper yough. Plenty of straight forward infastructure up there for driftboats.
