You need heavy split shot especially if you are fishing the grand in Ohio if it is up and moving. I am talking about splits the size of small marbles. You want it moving slow just ticking the bottom. I was used to fishing PA where you use bb sized splits. The Grand is an entirely different animal. If you don't have enough weight to slow your fly down and get the depth your fly will blow right over the fish's heads. I use caddis patterns, meth heads, black and golden stones, egg patterns and minnow patterns for steelhead in OH, PA and NY. You have to carry a lot of different patterns in different colors. The fish can change up what they are hitting on day to day even hour to hour. Once you find fish and key in on what colors they want you should be able to hook and land some fish.
