You forgot to include this sentence, it was right above the part that you copied and pasted. Gfen made this clear very early.

Obviously Cabelas is very lenient when it comes to their return policy. If my 3 year old rod was broken while casting, maybe I would take it back to see if they could do anything. After breaking it in a car door, I wouldn't think about returning it. Returning reels every year "Just To Get A New One"??? Keep telling yourself that is being honest. You take used boots back after 2 years when the policy says 1 year. Just attempting to return after that amount of time shows me that you are taking advantage of the system. There is a big difference between a company trying to keep their customers happy, and a customer taking advantage.
