If the mentored youth day even got a few kids interested, it's worth it. It may be hard to tell from time to time, but we are a dying breed. Many kids these days do not want to get outdoors. For a lot of them, it's just as rewarding to sit at home and play video games or surf the Internet. If the mortality rate of stocked trout spiked a little that day, so be it.

At the end of the day, there really is no pleasing some people. No matter what the PFBC does, there will always be a group of guys who put it down.
