Was itching so bad to we a line today decided to hit the bush kill creek in the c and r area below the falls.... While walking to the water another flyfisherman Passes me within ten feet and never even acknowledged my presence..... Then while in the water another one comes up to the bank and tells me how I am standing in the best spot and then casts so close that at the end of his drift his fly almost snags my waders..... The whole time smiling and telling me that he usually avoids anglers and keeps to himself..... So what do you guys think???

Who was worse.??? And how do you treat other anglers you may meet stream side ????
