
Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Opening day angler counts

Re: Opening day angler counts

Author: : Maurice

Date: : 2013/3/31 10:38:22

URL:

Quote:

SNPbound wrote:

I don't fish any stocked water why should I pay for the trout Maurice? I am unable to get involved because of my work schedule being an average of 65 hours a week and having a family. Plus I don't eat the fish anyway. So Maurice why dot you enlighten me to what it's all about anyway since you seem to have all of the answers.

If you don't fish stocked water you have no skin in the game. Why are you so passionate over the subject?

[here is the I have all the answers part,, for the other readers of course] Volunteering is not for everyone anyway, It requires a certain amount of selflessness and sacrifice. You recognize the need, formulate a plan and devote time or monies to take it to fruition. Often the investment is an effort in giving back. So if you receive nothing (enjoyment or satisfaction) from stocked trout (being a wild stream only fisherman) I can see lack of desire.

What I cannot grasp is the degree of desired entitlement for something you have no interest in. Sort of like saying (I wan't gov't cheese too or an Obama phone, yet having no desire to consume or use them)

There is a place in successful volunteering for everyone... When you come into a scenario where volunteering is active, you need to either Lead, Follow, or get out of the way. Pick your place and be happy with it.

So, you said your piece, I said mine.

Happy Easter!

\/
oo
^