I don't presume to have or be a divine presence.... But I was brought up to have common courtesy..... Whether streamside tableside or barside.... To just nod or any gesture at all..... We have a common interest..... Rude is rude.... And I wasn't standing in the stream just because I was wearing waders... But that was where my wading lead me.... I doubt the angler meant to be so close but non the less he was..... Yet like I said I had the option to move... Instead I. Moved over rested the run and came away with a fish..... A while ago someone posted on the forum asking if fly fisherman were elitist..... Can rude be misinterpreted as elitist??????
