Just use beadhead versions of Jack's nymphs in the previous posts, in sizes 12 thru 16 most of the time. When you see flies hatching from the water, try to match them by size and color. Usually, grayish flies will appear early in the season, then tannish ones in May, and yellowish ones in early June.

A book of hatches might help you. I'd recommend the Meck/Weamer collaboration about Pennsylvania hatches. That book ought to be available in most fly shops or online.
