I just think it might take a year or two maybe a few more... But all the people who fish the first week and nothing more would go away and the serious fisherman will remain..... Revenues would go down through reduced licensing fees.... But so would expenses..... Without the cost of all those millions of fish that wouldn't be needed..... Instead of requesting funds for repairian projects.... Local clubs would have to request permission to stock.... And find their own funding.... And revenues would be spent as they should river and water quality and enforcement..... Aaaahhhh to live in a perfect world.....
