

Subject: : Conservation

Topic: : The Gas Maps-WOW

Re: The Gas Maps-WOW

Author: : barbless

Date: : 2013/4/3 12:07:55

URL:

Fukushima was the most avoidable sort of planning error. A basic siting mistake. That disaster was completely unnecessary.

Coal ash would be considered low-level nuclear waste if it were produced by nuclear power plants instead of coal-fired plants. This country produces 130 million tons of it per year.