

Subject: : Gear Talk

Topic: : Fenwick Rods

Re: Fenwick Rods

Author: : Shock

Date: : 2013/4/3 12:39:13

URL:

Fenwick Rods were top notch in their day. Their glass rods were known for their performance; think Sage today.

They were one of the dominant fly rod companies and one of the first to get into boron and graphite. It is a bit of a sad story of being bought out and then loosing the market.

My first "real" fly rod was a glass Fenwick 7'8" for a 5/6wt and I still fish it occasionally. I saved up and bought it new when I was 15. Mine did not come with a tube or sock but last year I bought both for it because it is one of those childhood treasures.

Yours should hold some mojo as well so take it out and fish it.

Shock