Montana halted stocking in streams many years ago. It's trout fishing just got better and better. And the fishing pressure on many of Montana's best known streams has increased tremendously.

You say we can't match Montana: Anybody been to Spring Creek during the sulfur hatch lately? Or when the Green Drakes are hatching on Penns Creek and Fishing Creek. And how about the upper Delaware? Just to mention a few of the best.

And we have thousands of miles of relatively untouched wild brook and brown trout streams that aren't stocked and offer great fishing. I know, because I fish them. And that doesn't count the ones near the road that would improve tremendously if stocking were halted.
