No it wouldn't.

What about the option of leaving stocking up to local governments? Counties and whatnot, instead of a huge, state ran program? Also, private sporting clubs wouldn't stop stocking just because the State stops. Ryan, your situation is one to consider, but I also get KenU's point. KenU and I both know a stream here that has a solid population of natives, and yet is stocked over. It makes me nervous because the stream gets POUNDED the first few days. There are some bigger brookies in the stream, and I hate to think of them being harvested alongside the stocked bows. Not to mention the amount of trash I find myself picking up after opening weekend.
