I'll put it into the perspective of someone who doesn't live very close to any wild trout streams in PA.

that would be the main drawback.

the question is though, were they once trout waters ? - and could they be so again ?

and my comment about bait guys was very tongue in cheek personally i think states like PA and CT are very forward looking with their classifications of streams, definitely ahead of MA, RI and VA so we're priviliged in that respect.
