I'll put it into the perspective of someone who doesn't live very close to any wild trout streams in PA.

Ryan I hear you, that same stream is the same distance for me, but from a different direction. Even with that I prefer to fish for wild fish. I do not fish the streams within an hour of my home. I knew that when I moved from Doylestown to Bridgeville that my fishing was going to suffer. When I moved it was going to be here or Houston TX. The primary reason for SWPA was due to fly fishing for trout.

If you feel passionate about fishing for trout, and making the commitment of travel is too much, moving is always an option. I would like to fish for Peacock Bass after work, but I don't demand/expect a govt. agency to make this possible.
