Have been wanting to fish this stream for a couple of trips now but just couldn't fit it in until today. Small stream strewn with BIG granite boulders but beautiful to walk although difficult to walk. Water was in the 50's and I was unfortunate enough to have fished behind another guy which I didn't discover for an hour when he walked back down the trail. He told me he only got 1 which to that point had me beat. After about 15 miuntes fishing started to heat up. The first 3 fish I hooked I lost because I wasn't setting the hook hard enough. Too much brookie fishing I guess. I ended up landing 8 or 9 most around 6 or 7" but the last fish pushed 12". He knew his pool well because as soon as I hooked him he went and wrapped around a submerged branch but it is a small stream so I went in after him.

I hope you like the pictures.
