Mike, is your relation to spawning colors for palominos based on experience? Quincidence? Fact? I dont see why one breed of trout would prefer any color over another, they all have a pea sized brain and whether natural or stocked or some weird crossbreed id thinkone wouldnt have a preference over another.

Salmonoid, when i saw powerbait my jaw dropped lol. With the 100 guys throwing powerbait at him and spinners and worms id think that would be the last thing it would be interested in.

Blueheron, Its a big bow.

Like i said, in my experience when a fish is cautious and stressed, going super small and offering him what you have compared to forcing him is what makes the difference.
