I agree with you mike went out today just to pick up some gear for the shad and threw a few darts. Earlier in the day the water was 48 degrees went up to 50 . I think they need water temps at 50 for them to start spawning. I saw a few schools of fish but they wouldn't hit so I assume they are not spawning yet. Once this warm weather kicks in and the fish start spawning it will be tight lines for everyone.
