

---

Subject: : Gear Talk

Topic: : Float Tubes ?

Re: Float Tubes ?

Author: : TimMurphy

Date: : 2013/4/6 11:35:31

URL:

Dear JVenezia,

I currently own two float tubes and have owned a couple of others. I've been float tubing for over 20 years and I've taken a couple of fishing vacations where the majority of the fishing was done out of a float tube.

They are a blast to fish from. My fiancee' even likes to float tube fish when the water and weather is nice.

As far as fins go the $ 29.99 Caddis el cheapo's are all you need. I own them and a pair of Force Fin adjustable fins and the Caddis fins are much better fins 99% of the time. The Force Fins are too rigid and they make entering and exiting the water a real chore.

The tubes I own are a Caddis Navigator and Waterskeeter Day Tripper. Both are sized to accomodate my lardbutt.

Since you live in the Lancaster area I'd be willing to meet up with you somewhere nearby and let you demo either of my float tubes if you would like to see what using one is like before you spend the money to buy one?

Regards,

Tim Murphy 😊