Looks mighty nice to me.

One of the problems new tiers often exhibit is a tendency to tie their flies (esp dry flies) too thick or with too much material. Yours looks good.

FI,

Thanks for your kind words. I'm lucky to have two mentors working semi-closely with me. Moonbeam and the Heritage Angler have been guiding me in my fly-tying journey, as well as the application on the water!

That's not to mention all the support from everyone when I post pictures of one of my efforts.

Also had luck today with two of my efforts, this fly being one of them, with the final critics swimming in the Little Lehigh!
