

Subject: : Gear Talk

Topic: : Simms Wet Wading Guard Socks(Waterproof?)

Simms Wet Wading Guard Socks(Waterproof?)

Author: : streamerguy

Date: : 2013/4/7 15:42:01

URL:

I recently got these as a gift and decided to give them a try today. No, I wasn't wet wading haha but I wore them with my waders because my waders had leaks in the feet. So after wading for a little while I felt water. Not as much as without the neoprene socks underneath, but still some water was getting through. I wasn't wading deep either and for long periods of time, so it's not like my waders filled up and the entire sock was wet, just the foot portions of the socks.

When I got home I filled up the socks with water, and sure enough water would slowly seep through the seams. I know they are for wet wading(which is what I plan on using them for) but aren't they still supposed to be waterproof?

I guess if I just fix the leaks in my waders everything would be all fine and dandy, but I would still think the neoprene socks would be a temporary fix.