All the stockies have been rising at night around 10pm in the local stream. Friday night I was hiking/fishing along the creek late at night. About a mile into my hike, I came to spot where there were probably 6-10 fish consistently rising to small caddis and midges and I could see them from the street lights.

As I sat down to take off my streamer and tie on a few dries, two geese come smashing down right on top of the risers and start fighting each other, ripping up and down the water.

needless to say, the fish stopped rising.
