

Subject: : Fly Fishing Locations

Topic: : Jordan creek near Bethlehem PA

Re: Jordan creek near Bethlehem PA

Author: : InTheMend

Date: : 2013/4/8 15:24:33

URL:

There are fish in there, but it's not special regs so by now the fish that haven't been harvested have seen thousands of eggs, power bait, and worms. You will have better luck driving for 10 mins and going to the Little Lehigh Heritage Section. It gets slammed more than any other stream I know of, even though it is fly fishing catch and release only, but there are countless numbers of fish in there so you can almost always pull a few out. Most of the fish are wild and you have bows, browns, and brookies in there. Your best bet is just to nymph with light tippet and midges or baetis nymphs right now. Its right next to a hatchery so you can't miss it. It is definitely worth a shot just be prepared to share a hole with four other people.... PM me if you want more info.